

OVERVIEW

Highlights

- ✦ IOM has begun air evacuations of stranded migrants from inside Libya. So far, 370 Chadian migrants who had spent weeks living in the open with limited access to food, water, and health services, have been evacuated together with their belongings out of the southern Libyan town of Sebha and flown back to the Chadian capital of N'Djamena. The returnees were met on arrival by IOM staff and provided with food, shelter, and assistance to return to their towns and villages. In the coming days, more IOM-chartered flights will assist up to 2,000 migrants marooned in Sebha and in Gatroun, a town further to the south (See Press Briefing Notes).
- ✦ As of 7 July, a total of 615,964 migrants crossed Libya's borders.* This figure includes 291,971 TCNs, which represent 48% of total crossings. On that day, it was reported that 1,142 migrants (239 TCNs) crossed the borders to Tunisia and Egypt.
- ✦ IOM and its partners have assisted 151,727 TCNs to their country of origin so far. The total caseload in need of evacuation at the Libyan borders is estimated at 2,458 migrants.

Nota Bene: In the context of the Libyan Crisis, Third Country Nationals (TCNs) describes migrants who crossed the border from Libya to a country that is not their country of origin. The number of reported TCNs includes a large number of migrants who do not require IOM's assistance. In particular, in February and March, at the onset of the crisis, many migrants - with or without the support of their consular authorities - have left neighbouring countries to return to their home. IOM and its partners have supported more than 50% of the total number of TCNs fleeing Libya.

*Cross-border movement statistics only refer to migrants leaving Libya.
